What does the Company do?

Our vision is to be the provider of choice for organisations seeking to motivate, empower and equip their people.

We offer development and coaching packages aimed at leaders, teams and individuals and coaching packages which are effective, inspirational and client focussed.

We consult with organisations to ensure their working practices, policies and procedures are conducive to the potential growth and well being of their people.

What is the background of the Company?

P31 Consulting started in 2005. Our team of associates bring many years experience in the field of people and organisational development. Whilst we work with clients from both sectors our particular emphasis is developing staff within organisations especially who are under-represented in senior leadership positions.

Managing Director, Audrey Linton spent many years working in Central Government as a policy maker supporting organisations to develop policies and procedures conducive to the potential growth and well-being of their employees.

What are the unique selling points of the business?

The one word that most people who attend our development programmes use in their evaluation is 'Inspirational'.

Our uniqueness is that we develop and deliver programmes to segmented target groups as this gives opportunity for participants to form common bonds and feel comfortable and secure in the learning process. We believe in developing leadership capability at all levels of the organisations and our programmes reflect this.

Who are your major clients?

P31 recently won a contract with University of East London to develop a leadership coaching programme aimed at senior lecturers from black and minority ethnic groups.

In addition, we continue to deliver our highly successful women's programme - ACTUVATE to clients such as Ministry of Justice, South Kilburn New Deal for Communities, Barnet Homes. Our open programmes have been attended by employees from Merrill Lynch, Lehmanns, Enterprise Rent-a-car, Ford Motors, Royal Mail, Islington Council and others. Work as an associate company to deliver contracts with NHS and the National School of Government.
